Welcome!

Hi, I'm Natasha! I'm from Humboldt up North. I've got a fair bit of experience programming, but it's never been something I excelled in.

Plenty of strange beings inhabit these lands. They're quite bizarre, forgive the depths of my unconscious for that. This one is named Hank. I don't know what he is, but he looks quite goofy. The other is Lahdi, a librarian and cartographer.

Task 4

1. Task 1 posed no challenges for me. As with all follow-alongs, it was pretty easy!
2. I wanted to add another dream character of mine, but was struggling to find the old sketchbook in which I designed her. So this is an entirely new iteration of the character. I intended to add some grass at the bottom of the page, but it ended up turning out less-than-satisfactory, so I ended up commenting it out. I struggled greatly with getting this page to load on the website- for some reason, the images refuse to load while they work just fine on my local branch. Git is synced too, I'm genuinely stumped there. Asked my TA for advice, and it was just as bizarre for them as well.

3. Luna and I got on a call together Sunday and worked on our respective lab 3 pages. I always took longer than her to complete mine, as I hand-draw all of the visual assets. It was mostly working parallel, though we'd send code back and forth to share. I finished mine a day later.
